On March 1st, I was emailed that I had backed 2,874 yen from my ??? If you look at the details, the store FC2,INC (HELP, FC 2 COM) The amount of use was 2,874 yen. First, the mailing address to enter FC2 is a long old mobile address, and even if you can log in because I send an authorization number to your melad in a security issue...I can't confirm the PIN. I can't log in. Anyway, if you write the situation as best as possible in the support center and send an email, the next response will come and I will write it as a memorandum because it will probably be able to respond. Thank you for always using FC2 to get answers (as in the original text, except for your personal name and address). Support for FC2 users As for the question you asked, I confirmed that the client registered two FC2 accounts with the following email address, and the domain was purchased by each ????????. &lt;a0&gt; &lt;/a0&gt;docomo.ne.jp &lt;a0&gt;docomo.ne.jp In addition, the domain cannot be removed or removed from FC2's domain services until it is completely disabled after it expires. If you want to cancel, please wait for the automatic extension to be turned off on each account. You can change the automatic update to OFF by following the next steps below. 1. Login to FC2ID 2. Click on the Kanachi mark next to the FC2 domain in the service list to access the domain control screen. .... 3. Click The Automatic Updates button to the right of the domain name. Set automatic upgrade settings to the OFF button and click Change 5. If automatic updates are configured to not be installed on the domain control screen, it is complete. If you turn off the automatic update setting, there will be no update or charge. If the domain expires and then it is removed, the domain name display is automatically removed from the domain control screen. Note: The domain will be unsalted on the control screen during the domain transfer (transfer unlocking). If you want to stop using, there is no need to install. And that's .... It is an answer that seems to understand and does not understand well. Patiently, look to turn off the automatic update settings! As for the foregoing, the detailed profile was not entered displayed on the control screen, it is troublesome in terms of work, because I do not know the login password in the first place, need to confirm by email again, but the response is back, but it takes one day to exchange, so it is quite troublesome. The reason is that when you purchase a domain, automatic updates are recorded as ON, and you update for one year without claiming it. I can't help but say that I'm registered to a domain. As you can see in the response, if you don't encourage work, it will be removed in the same way next year. However, I feel it's hard to reach the page with if you turn off the automatic settings update above. Well, since the person who signed up is bad, I can't justify it, but it's a system that's not very kind anyway. So I decided not to use such a free blog domain at all in the future. If you're going to do it, it's WordPress! ちなみに、他の方はどうなのかとググっていましたが、動画の有料版登録してしまい、これも自動更新なので退会しないと自動課金されるパターンがあるそうです(ノ)ノ オオオオオオオオオオオ. In addition, it is possible o 10 000. It is possible, but it is likely that you have signed up for FC2 and purchased paid members or content and points. In this case, the person in question should have with the map information. If you log in and enter Payment/FC2 Points on the left, you can see the shopping history of the last 6 months, so please check! However, there may be things that are hard to find because the screen gets warm on a regular basis... I think there are people like me.
